2.2.3 Institution facilitates building and sustenance of innate talent /aptitude of individual students (extramural activities/beyond the classroom activities such as student clubs, cultural societies, etc).

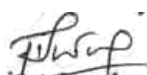

The main focus of the institution is on academics, but equal importance is given to extramural activities, such as cultural, indoor and outdoor sports. The institute has cultural, sports, and student nurses 'association (SNA) which ensures that the students of the institute participate in academics, sports, and cultural inter-university, intercollegiate and collegiate competitions.

1. Aptitude to Health through Sports and Yoga: All the students are given sports periods once a week and the institute organizes sports day, institute week, sports competitions regularly. The Organization organizes a walkathon for faculty and students, physical live sessions of yoga, every year and students perform yoga on regular basis. The Institute celebrates 'Yoga day' on 21st June of every year.

2. Extra Curricular Exposures: Our institute celebrates institute week where students participate in various cultural competitions like dance, singing, Nutrition week and sports (Indoor, outdoor). By these competitions the student talents are identified and these students are promoted for specialized coaching for individualized talents. The institute provides regular training to the students to develop business communication and soft skills to make them employable. The Institute has an alumni cell that looks into the placement of passed-out students in different medical organizations and the health sectors. Institute encourages students for taking jobs initiated by University (MUHS) under the earn and learn scheme.

3. Societal Contribution: Institute sensitizes the students for their social responsibilities by enrolling students every year to volunteer in Various Governmental campaigns, such as Pulse Polio Vaccination, COVID-19 Vaccination, blood donation drives in collaboration with Swami
