Experiential Learning:

Being a nursing institute, experiential learning is an important methodology within faculty. Here in the method more emphasis is given to the integration of theory into practice in terms of patient care. In nursing education, it is called as; r learning by doing. The training consists of practical applications and patient-centric learning experiences through live case presentations, history taking, physical examination, evidence-based discussions on diagnosis and management. This allows students to practice medical care repetitively in laboratory environment before encountering patients in clinical settings, greatly enhancing student confidence and patient safety.
