Description	The principal addressed the gathering and welcomed the guest. The HOD introduced about the guest and handled over to the speaker. Psychosocial approaches address risks to individual, group, and communal identity from disruptive events or life challenges. This approach is especially useful in situations where individual, group, and community identity and roles are questioned, challenged, annihilated, and need reconstruction-readjustment, such as migration and displacement caused by wars, disasters, collective socioeconomic vulnerabilities, and return. Therefore, psychological activities are essential to humanitarian responses to emergency relocation. These programs tend to have a non-harmonized psychological support approach and knowledge. The Course provides a framework for understanding the psychological aspect of displacement and crisis-affected cultures and harmonizes psychosocial assistance principles, techniques, and resources. Finally HOD delivered the vote of thanks and the guest was felicitated with a momentum
